

WAD Social Phenomena

Almost every minority in a Western country experiences some version of the phenomena above. The unique part of these descriptions is that:

1. Asians of different ethnicities are grouped together. This grouping is not entirely obvious, and the reason Asians give for this is due to appearances while at the same time ignoring any cultural contributions.
2. Direct references to skin color in actuality compose a minority of the reasons for ostracization, usually it is a cultural stereotype that is associated with someone's appearance, leading to this behavior
